

FuseConnect for the NHS

We recognise that NHS organisations need to have access to high calibre consultancy, temporary and interim staff in order to maintain services and ensure smooth running.

Sickness, sabbaticals, maternity and paternity leave, unplanned employee departures, delays in recruiting new staff ...all play havoc with workloads and put pressure on existing staff. In addition there can be times when specific projects, seasonal demand or other matters call for additional support.

FuseConnect is Fuse Learning's solution to these problems. We help by providing high-level specialist administration, project management and management non-clinical staff.

- All of the staff we provide are checked by us and have appropriate backgrounds, qualifications, experience etc., for the work which they are expected to carry out
- In some cases staff may have direct NHS experience; in others they possess suitable transferable skills
- CVs and references can be supplied
- Utilising our consultancy, temporary or interim staff eliminates the lengthy and expensive process of engaging salaried staff on short-term contracts
- Invoices are raised weekly, ensuring that costs can be monitored
- Appointments can be terminated at short notice if required
- All staff consent to CRB checks where appropriate

Our temporary or interim consultancy staff can be utilised not only for filling existing posts on a short-term basis, but can also be engaged to assist with time-limited projects or surges in workload which may occur from time to time.
